THE BATTLE CRY OF PEACE

This call to arms against war touches the heart strings of your every emotion. It appeals to your sense of honor, your sense of duty as an American. It is an inspired revelation from the pen of J. Stuart Blackton and produced under his personal supervision.

It is more than a picture. It is a great national propaganda which deals with the most important problem that has confronted this nation since the Civil War—the problem of unpreparedness.

"BATTLE CRY OF PEACE" COMING TO DIXIE SOON

Article Written By James W.
Currie In The Chicago
American

A sermon was delivered at the Olympic Theatre last night—a twentieth century sermon entitled "The Battle Cry of Peace."

It was a moving picture sermon which will be preached every day in the future as long as people will look at it, and it is a sermon most of us need.

It is the reviewer's task to choose a course between extravagant superlatives and the commonplace of mere fact. "The Battle Cry of Peace" does not make for moderation. It causes the blood to pound through the veins, driven by a heart aroused over the prophetic picture of a vital menace of the future, rather than a sentimental portrayal of past history. It is an unapologetic appeal for preparation against war and that it demanded no apology was evidenced by its enthusiastic reception by a large audience.

It was a typical first night.

Even the author, J. Stuart Blackton, who based his scenario on Hudson Maxim's book, "Defenseless America" was present and made a curtain speech. He was welcomed on behalf of the city and introduced by Health Commissioner Robertson. It was a real occasion.

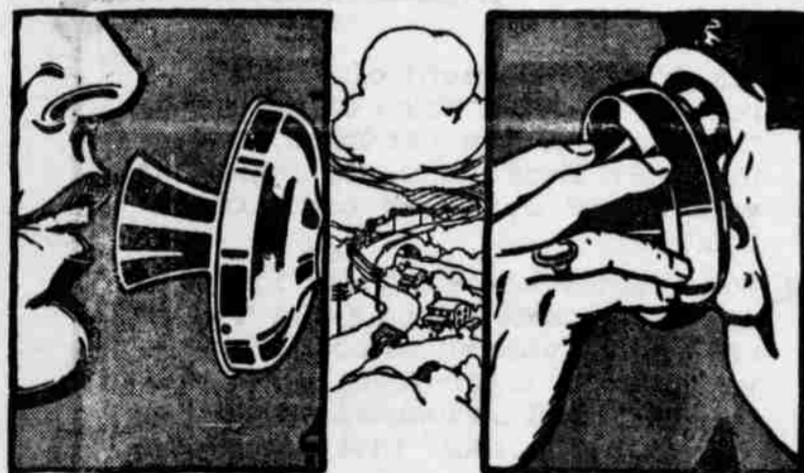

"If you are surprised, if you are horrified and shocked by this picture, I am glad of it," the author said.

"That was the intention, for what is set forth is only to a trifling degree as terrible as what is taking place in Europe today. We are preaching propaganda—a peace propaganda—but not the Bryan kind."

Then, to add to the dramatic atmosphere, there was a picturesque lovable old man known to the audience as Captain Jack Crawford, who served the Union throughout the civil war. "Captain Jack," too, talked for preparedness and aroused great enthusiasm when he recited patriotic verses and waved an American flag. England should devise a "Battle Cry of Peace" in her enlistment campaign and recruits will tumble over themselves to serve "King and Country."

Technically the Vitagraph picture violates most of the established traditions of cinematography, but by so doing the story is told more effectively. When the first reel is flashed on the screen Hudson Maxim is disclosed delivering his lecture on preparedness against war. His words are made known by frequent captions and these are followed by graphic portrayals of his statements. He tells what a foreign enemy could do, and lo, the enemy does it. The producers have blazed a new and interesting trail into the "movies." They have dared much and their judgment was well founded. "The Battle Cry of Peace" will achieve a vogue because it is essentially sincere.

Of the individual performers Charles Richman stands out above the rest. He cannot help it; he was given the part; but the work of Belle Bruce as Alice Harrison discloses that she is an emotional actress of more than ordinary ability. Mary Maurice, as the mother, maintains her right to honorable mention, as do the other principals. Coming to the Dixie Theatre, Paris, Tenn., Friday and Saturday, matinees and nights March 19 and 20. Prices, adults 50c children 25c.

Obituary

Little Bertha Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ray, was born March 18, 1908, died April 20, 1916, aged 8 years 1 month and 2 days.

She leaves a loving father, three brothers and one sister besides many relatives and friends to mourn her loss.

Little Bertha, as she was commonly called, was a sweet little blue-eyed girl of a quiet pleasant disposition and loved by all who knew her. To her brothers and sister she was, little sister, no sweeter name ever fell from mortal lips. Oh, how they did love her, but though she is gone her pure life will ever be a guiding star to point them to that better world to which she has been called.

We wish to say to her loved ones that although we know their grief is great, yet they have so much to be thankful for.

All that willing hands and loving hearts could do was done to stay the hand of death, but God in His great wisdom had called her and she must go. So for that, and in hope of the resurrection we would say be comforted.
